

Elisa has 24 years of experience as Designer and Project Manager at Sullivan Architecture. Her experience at the firm, coupled with her enthusiasm for the design and construction process fosters client participation throughout all phases of a project. Elisa's daily project management includes team coordination, design development, construction documents, and on-site construction administration. She also leads the firm's interior design department in the selection of finishes and lighting. She has extensive experience working collaboratively with owner representation firms, general contractors and construction management companies.

Elisa's portfolio of relevant projects includes The Edward Cardinal Egan Residence for Retired Priests in Bronx, NY, interior renovations and new chapel for the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament in Scarsdale, NY, a new convent and residence for the Pallottine Sisters in Monroe, NY, and most recently, a modern, private residence in Armonk, NY. In addition, Elisa has extensive experience in residential design, including single and multi-family projects, as well as residences for religious communities, including the renovation and restoration of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Mary convent in Tarrytown, NY. Elisa also has master planning experience with various religious communities.
